DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-7, 11-14, and 17-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Charron et al US Patent 5,542,669. Charron discloses in the abstract and in columns 9-11 that a gaming apparatus that plays an interactive game of poker with a player provides a payback table that is modified at the beginning of each hand to provide at least one bonus card combination which has an increased payback amount. The bonus card combination having the increased payback amount is randomly selected prior to dealing the hand. In addition the amount by which the payback is increased is also randomly selected. Column 3 lines 60-65 state that the game can be any game of chance. Column 5 lines 53-67 disclose that the amount of winnings for a particular card combination is variable depending on the wants and needs of the casino. The casino operator also determines the odds of a particular outcome being selected. Column 10 discloses variable payback percentages. At detailed reading of the disclosure of Charron teaches an artisan of ordinary skill all of the claimed subject matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 8-10, 15 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Charron et al US Patent 5,542,669 as applied to the claims above in view of Mishra US Patent Application Publication 2004/0053673. Charron discloses all of the instant application as disclosed above but lacks in disclosing pots associated with a gaming outcome. In an analogous invention, Mishra compares the result of a game with that of additional symbols generated and determines if an additional award is due the player based on any method for providing symbols to determine if a combination or set or order or single symbol is predetermined as an award symbol display. In the play of the game above, it is possible for a jackpot contribution to be identified from the machine when a certain combination of the special symbols occurs. Rather than taking a percentage of all wagers made and applying it to a jackpot, in one example of the invention, only wager amounts made when there are predetermined combinations of special symbols will be contributed. This methodology avoids duplicating the many jackpot games using a constant percentage contribution. Players may feel more inclined to contribute towards a jackpot when there appears to be a high frequency of near misses to the jackpot. It is important to understand that the bonus wheel, reel or other symbol selection device is played in each round of play, and that no separate bet is required to play the matching game. The matching game according to the invention is an integral part of the underlying game and is not a separate bonus event that is played at the player's option. It would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use the jackpots that are associated with a winning event when a symbol selected matches the bonus award in order to attract players to play the game machine as disclosed above.
